DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Regarding claim 6, member lacks antecedent basis.

Specification

The specification is objected to as failing to provide proper antecedent basis for the claimed subject matter. See 37 CFR 1.75(d)(1) and MPEP § 608.01(o). Correction of the following is required: Most of applicant's claim terminology is not supported in the specification making claim interpretation impossible. For example, means for preventing, means for anchoring, member, means for spacing, engagement member, body, retention member, anchor portion are not supported.

As far as the claims can be determined, the following is made of record.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 1-4, 6, 15-17, 24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Carpenter et al (5,425,768).

Carpenter et al teaches a positioner for implantation adjacent a femoral hip implant for retaining the femoral hip implant in a femoral canal having a canal wall, the positioner comprising:

means for preventing the femoral hip implant from rising out of the femoral canal beyond a predetermined position while permitting subsidence of the femoral hip implant down into the femoral canal including elements 46 which couples to the stem 22 of the femoral hip implant; and means for anchoring the means for preventing relative to the femoral canal 62 which are capable of being wedged in the femoral canal providing anchoring and further provide a "means for anchoring" once the cement cures.

Regarding the means for spacing, see element 48.

Claims 1-10 and 15-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Link et al (4,698,063).

Link et al teaches a positioner for implantation adjacent a femoral hip implant for retaining the femoral hip implant in a femoral canal having a canal wall, the positioner comprising:

means for preventing the femoral hip implant from rising out of the femoral canal beyond a predetermined position while permitting subsidence of the femoral hip implant down into the femoral canal including elements 10 and serrations;

and means for anchoring the means for preventing relative to the femoral canal 13 and the serrations the stem.

Regarding claim 6, see the serrations on the hip implant.

The spacing elements/means/etc. include elements 13 and the fins on which the serrations are on. See figure 2 showing anterior and posterior fins.

Regarding claim 7, see first member 10 and second member 13.

Regarding claim 15, anchor portion, see at least the serrations.

Claim 17, see at least the fins.

Claim 18, "retention member" is element 10.

Claim 22, elements 13 and 10 form a symmetrical "L" shape.

Claims 1-7, 15-20, 22-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Mathys, Sr. et al.

Mathys, Sr. et al teaches a positioner for implantation adjacent a femoral hip implant for retaining the femoral hip implant in a femoral canal having a canal wall, the positioner comprising:

means for preventing the femoral hip implant from rising out of the femoral canal beyond a predetermined position while permitting subsidence of the femoral hip implant down into the femoral canal (see screw head);

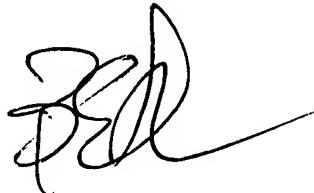

and means for anchoring the means for preventing relative to the femoral canal (see screw 9).
